

The Montessori classroom is prepared in such a way that the children work freely and independently after the teacher gives them the formal lessons. The mixed aged grouping encourages the children to teach and learn from each other. The teacher's role is one of the observer and guide as the children progress at their own pace. The environment is prepared to guide the learners toward a progression of skills. The uninterrupted work cycle is also an essential part in allowing the child to master each skill. The carefully prepared environment includes specially made materials for specified developmental skill progression. There are five major areas to the primary (3 to 6 year old) classroom: Practical Life, Sensorial, Language, Math and Culture, which includes Science, Geography and Art. Each area indirectly establishes a base for proficiency in the main areas of traditional studies through real life, hands on exercises. Each child works at his/her own level/pace with the close guidance of the teacher. The child's work is individualized to meet his/her needs and interests. Lessons are presented one-on-one or in small groups. Our teachers are formally trained with the American Montessori Society to ensure this curriculum is authentic and of the highest quality.
